Small cards, real savings in dishware.

Fragile Warning Cards · getting started

WHO THIS SHEET IS FOR

Anyone facing a move who would like it to feel a little calmer. Everything here is free, prints on plain letter paper, works offline, and asks nothing back — no account, no email, no app. Print it, tape it, scribble on it. That is the whole requirement.

WHAT YOU NEED

- This printout, scissors, and tape
- A red or orange marker, if you have one

HOW TO USE IT

1. Cut along the dashed lines; each card is meant to be tossed in a box after unpacking and reused for the next one.
2. Tape one card on two opposite faces of every fragile box, so it is visible on two of the four sides however it is stacked.
3. Write the room name and the box number on each card, matching your box-label sheet.
4. When you pack lamps and dishes, put them on the truck last so they come off first and never end up under camping gear.

One warm tip: Words help movers; colors help everyone. A bold marker border around a card reads from across a garage.

Fragile Warning Cards

Cut, write, tape on two faces of every fragile box. They are cheap on purpose — use a pile of them.

Truck order matters more than tape: fragile boxes load last and come off first, then never camp under the camping gear. Keep a card taped to your car's dash and you will remember that some fragile boxes ride with people, not with the truck.
